REPORT

OF THE

TRUSTEES OF THE NEW BOSTON CEMETERY.

There have been no particular changes made in the cemetery grounds by us during the year. Special instructions were given the superintendent to keep the grounds neat and tidy and show an accommodating spirit to all visitors, whether strangers or those improving their lots, and so far as we know he has faithfully carried out the instructions. Neither has any complaint reached us that his especial attention has had to be called to. At any and all times we would be glad of suggestions from any citizen for any changes or work that may seem desirable, so that we may not be remiss in giving proper attention to anything that will benefit the grounds. In the early spring the old cemetery was thoroughly raked, and the leaves and debris carted off and burned. And we wish to call especial attention to all who have ancestors and friends buried on this part to the necessity of looking after their tombstones, as most of them were placed when not so much care for solidity and stability was exercised in setting as is customary now, and the exposed condition of the cemetery gives the high west winds such a sweep, that unless looked after often, they soon become leaning or blown or broken down. Later in the early summer the entire cemetery was mowed and raked off and all weeds and briars removed. Some private lots were kept trimmed by the owners all the season, and any party desiring such care can make arrangements with the superintendent, or special funds can be left with the trustees and the interest thus applied for perpetual care, as has been the case with the children of Stephen Bennett, depositing $100 for such care on the Bennett lot. Frequent expressions of a desire, both by towns people and visitors, for suitable hitching-posts outside of the cemetery, led us to order six good hammered stone posts and set them at a convenient place, believing that in the long run they would be safest and most satisfactory and inexpensive, and they will appear in the charges against the town. The "Eminence Lot," formerly the old Pound grounds, has also been kept mowed and shade trees trimmed. The hearse sleigh has been repainted, and we think the summer hearse should be thoroughly painted and varnished, to be used as the hearse belonging to the town. Although the superintendent's report of interments and removals herewith submitted shows as small, if not less, mortality in numbers than any report for many years, you will all be forcibly reminded how very large a per cent of those committed to the bosom of our cemetery were those who had attained a great age, and the generation that entered into the activities of life and the business of the town at the time the cemetery came under the care of the trustees, is being rapidly "gathered to their fathers." May no less earnest desire pervade the generation following, that everything pertaining to the cemetery and the burial of the dead "be done decently and in order," than animated these noble ones "passed from our sight."
